

An Addagram a day

By Unstoppable Kums

The grid has 5 sets of "Addagrams", indicated by A to E at the beginning of each clue.

An Addagram set is a collection of words of lengths n , $n+1$, $n+2$ and so on, where a bigger word is an anagram of the smaller word and an additional letter.

An example of such a set is: set, lest, tales, staple, plaster.

All the clues which are part of the Addagram sets have Enums hidden but will fit in one of the slots within that Addagram's set.

In the other clues which have the correct Enum, the wordplay leading to the answer either has an extra letter or is short of a letter (for example: the wordplay might lead to "placid" or "laid", but the answer would be plaid and the Enum would be correctly indicated as 5).
